PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It was a dark and stormy night, but that didn't stop 19 dedicated members from coming out on April 6th, to the first South Wellington Coin Society meeting to take place in two years. When I called the meeting to order at 7 PM everyone had spent about 30 minutes catching up and it was like we had never missed a meeting. It really felt like old times. Two members who had joined on Zoom, Rose Van Sickle and David Carpenter joined us live for the first time. I believe both members enjoyed our meeting format. Rose drove from Hanover, Adrian Zmija drove from Meaford and our speaker Ron Cheek came from Collingwood. Now that's dedication! Thanks to Mike Walsh in promoting our mtg. on CCN site.

Our speaker, Ron Cheek gave a presentation on "Fun with Cash" - 140 old Chinese coins dug up in Java. As always Ron not only entertained us but he educated us on a common group of coins that can be found everywhere and are very inexpensive. Fun Cash indeed!!

The attendance draw was won by Andrew Strachan but since he left early he didn't collect. The prize is up to $10 next month. The King Arthurs treasure was won by Scott Douglas consisting of around 70 items. The Daytona Draw was won by Lance Tribble. Lance chose the envelope and the wonderful 1990 Canada Proof Double Dollar 7-Coin Proof Set Commemorating the 300th Anniversary of Henry Kelsey's Ventures into the Canadian West, rather than take the cash bid of $35. Lance was happy. Cost of that happiness was a mere $2 for a Daytona ticket. One of the Daytona draw envelopes which contains a gold prize, and since it was not won, it will be available again in our May draw.

Mike Hollingshead ran our auction with Peter Becker's help as official runner. This team made it seem like they had never stopped doing it. Some great auction items went home with the membership. Thank you Mike and Peter for all your help. Mike said the meeting was great, and called it a "homecoming."

During the meeting, members were given a wood to celebrate the 25th Anniversary of our club. This wood was made available to the club through the generosity of our Editor and fellow member Judy Blackman. Thank you Judy. I personally handed these woods out to the members in attendance. What a wonderful souvenir of the Anniversary of the South Wellington Coin Society and its 25 years of numismatic excellence. The balance remaining of these woods will be made available in September when we hope to have a full celebration of our club and its achievements following our show.

Thank you to John Semedo and Peter Becker for taking photos during the meeting. A wonderful time was had by all, and I know everyone is anxious to attend next month's meeting – especially me. I hope to see you there!

All the Best
Scott Douglas

CLUB EDUCATION

Speakers: We are in need of speakers and topics commencing with our July 6, 2022 meeting. We want to avoid the repetition of speakers' topics of clubs located in close proximity of our club, so folks don't avoid coming out to our meeting due to a repeat topic. We are hoping to have more original presentations from our own members rather than attempting to seek speakers who have to travel a distance to present.

Your presentation doesn't need to be fancy, you can just come and speak and hold up items in reference to your topic. Please reach out to Scott and sign up for one of these 2022 dates:

- May 4: Michael Souza presents The History of the Bank of Vancouver Note: this will be our first attempt at a combined in-person + Zoom meeting, so be patient as there may be kinks to work through.
- June 1: (Annual Pizza Night): Lance Tribble presents 25 Years of the Toonie.

IMPORTANT: To ensure everybody can enjoy pizza at our Annual June Pizza Party, if you can only have gluten-free pizza, or vegetarian pizza, be sure to let Scott know during our May meeting so he can ensure these are included in the order for our June meeting.

- July 6: why don't you volunteer?
- August 3: why don't you volunteer?
- September 7: why don't you volunteer?
- October 5: why don't you volunteer?
- November 2: why don't you volunteer?
- December 7: why don't you volunteer?

Congratulations SWCS on Milestone

Message from Robert Zuk: "Congratulations to the South Wellington Coin Society on reaching 25 years! Keep this up and the club will be on its way to its 50th! I hope to attend the an in-person club meeting soon, I miss it, especially the great fellowship!"

OOPS!: Our Apologies

In our last newsletter in listing folks who participated in our March meeting, we inadvertently showed "Robyn" Semedo instead of "Robin" Semedo. We do have another member whose first name is Robyn, hence the confusion. Our sincere apologies to Robin Semedo!

SMILE: A Bit of Humour

A friend in BC (Nancy Merrifield-Sones) sent this story (filled with chuckles) to your Editor.

Three worldly coins, Dogecoin, Quid, and Krone were sitting on a park bench catching up about their coin families, and carping about other coins and anything else that comes to mind. Listen to some of their comments: "My wife Ore is on two diets. She wasn't getting enough food on one." "My wife Shokang finds a cold seat in a public restroom is unpleasant. I told her that a warm seat in a public restroom is worse." "My wife Pessa told me to mail the reply to her divorced sister's (Moneta) upcoming wedding, on my way to work. I did but Pessa got upset anyway. Apparently, an RSVP to a wedding invitation 'Maybe next time,' isn't the correct response." "I need to be careful around my father Wark and his brother Quint. I have learned you don't irritate old people. The older we get, the less 'Life in prison' is a deterrent." "I told a driver named Hwan, that he will hit every cone on the highway before I let him merge in front of me because he saw that sign 2 miles ago like I did." "I asked my wife if I was the only one she had ever been with. She said yes, all the others (like Lari and Imadi) were nines and tens. Give it a minute." "I really don't mind getting older, but my body is taking it badly, unless my neighbour Rupia who look like The Rock. It turns out that being an adult now is mostly just googling how to do stuff." "I miss the 1990s when bread was still good for you and no one knew what kale was. I loved visiting the local baker Thebe, he always gave me a Baker's Dozen (13) instead of a regular dozen (12)." "Do you ever get up in the morning, look in the mirror and think 'That can't be accurate.' I want to be 14 again and ruin my life differently. I have lots of new ideas. As I watch this new generation try to rewrite our history especially of my local gang days hanging with guys like Saiga, one thing I'm sure of....it will be misspelled and have no punctuation." "My sister Zyfert hauled me off to the doctor's for a check-up. Confuse your doctor by putting on rubber gloves at the same time he does. When I got home, I told my wife I wanted to be cremated. She made me an appointment for Tuesday." "My mother-in-law Uncia asked me to take her to one of those restaurants where they make food right in front of you. I took her to Subway. On our way back, I picked up a hitchhiker named Xu. He asked if I wasn't afraid, he might be a serial killer? I told him the odds of two serial killers being in the same car were extremely unlikely. After I dropped off both, I stopped at a roadside pub, and then later I went line dancing into the night. OK, it was a roadside sobriety test... same thing."

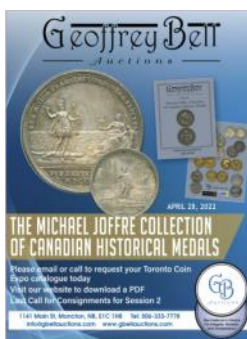

How many of the 18 world coins in this story did you recognize? How many are in your collection?

Chinese, Japanese... It's a Date!

As I sift through hundreds of world coins, cataloging each one for type, date and level of wear, there are always a few that are harder to identify than others. Easiest of course are the ones with English legends, that being my own native language. A little harder but straightforward are those countries using other languages but still the same familiar Latin alphabet, such as France, Spain and Portugal. Greek and Cyrillic alphabets are a bigger hurdle for me, but even these use our familiar number system, so they're quite easy to date even if I can't read the legend.

Most difficult are the coins of countries using not only different writing systems, but also different number systems and different calendar conventions. Many countries in east Asia fall into this category, as well as Islamic countries and Israel. Understanding these systems is another great learning opportunity that numismatics gives us, and with a little effort and practice, they are not that hard to learn.

Let's take a closer look at identifying the coins of China and Japan, which can be difficult to understand if you were brought up only on ABC's. Fortunately, both countries (and others) use similar glyphs or characters, at least for our limited scope.

Beginning with numbers used in coins, we have:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	100
一	二	三	四	五	六	七	八	九	十	百

The upper row of familiar numbers are actually called "Western Arabic" numbers due to their origin, but I'll refer to them simply as Arabic. (The wording might bring to mind a different set of numbers used in countries like the United Arab Emirates, but those are the "Eastern Arabic" numbers and are not treated in this article.)

The lower row shows the corresponding conventional numbers used in China and Japan. The special numbers for 10 and 100 work a little differently in that they don't use zeros, but some examples should make it clear. 14 is then 十四 (10 and 4), while 24 is 二十四 (2 x 10 and 4) and 42 is 四十二 (4 x 10 and 2). For 590 we would write 五百九十 (5 x 100 and 9 x 10).

As for dating coins, in Japan the date is always listed in terms of the year of the contemporary emperor's reign, each beginning with year 1.

Japanese Emperor (Regnal Name)	Characters	Calendar Years
Mutsuhito (Meiji)	明治	1867 - 1912
Yoshihito (Taishō)	大正	1912 - 1926
Hirohito (Shōwa)	昭和	1926 - 1989
Akihito (Heisei)	平成	1989 - 2019
Naruhito (Reiwa)	令和	2019 to present

Let's try a practical example pulled from my own bag of goodies:

Image: 5 yen, Japan, 1972. Image by the author.

The obverse on the right has these characters on the bottom legend: 昭和四十七年. 昭和 indicates the Shōwa era of 1926 to 1989. 四十七 is 4x10 and 7, and 年 means "year". So this is the 47th year of the Shōwa era, or 1972, remembering that 1926 is year 1 (not zero). At the top of the obverse is 日本国, literally "state of Japan". The symbols separating the top and bottom legends are decorative tree sprouts, or what the Krause catalog calls the "seed leaf". On the reverse below a rice plant and a gear, we can see the denomination 五円 for 5 yen.

Voila, it's like cracking a code!

One additional point of note: Japanese dates were printed from right-to-left prior to World War II, exactly the reverse order from what is discussed above. So if you're trying to determine whether you're reading 24 or 42, remember that the Era is at the beginning of the date, and the year symbol 年 is the end. Therefore, read the date in that direction with the tens first followed by the ones.

Other important characters on Japanese coins are the sen symbol 銭 for fractional yen (100 sen 銭 to the yen 円), the rin 厘 at one-tenth sen, and the federal legend 大日本 (Dai Nippon "Great Japan") that appears on older coins instead of the current 日本国 ("State of Japan"). Coins dated earlier than about 1940 use 圓 as the symbol for yen.

Turning now to China, many of the older issues (earlier than about 1908) are not dated at all, including the famous cast square-holed "cash" coins. For the dated coins, a few different dating systems were in use at the time: year of the Emperor, cyclical dates, and even the Muslim Hejira calendar. (The latter was used on some coins in Sinkiang province, which borders many Muslim countries to the west, and these coins are noteworthy for having Chinese characters on the obverse and Arabic writing on the reverse. Sinkiang province itself is noteworthy for using all three date systems in a five year period!)

Chinese era dating works exactly the same as in Japan, with the same year symbol 年. The relevant eras in Chinese coins are listed in the table. Overlap of years is due to a fascinating political history that would take us too far off-topic for this article. I will mention that the Republic of China in 1949 re-located to Taiwan as a result of the Chinese Civil War, and in mainland China was replaced by the current ruling People's Republic of China. Even today the status of Taiwan can be a thorny political issue.

As with Japanese legends, the Chinese era legends often read right-to-left depending on the context. The final entry in the table is not used as an era year, but is included to show the legend for coin identification.

Image: 2 Jiao, China, Fukien Province, 1927. Era is listed at the bottom on the reverse as (right-to-left) 民國 and 十六年, 16th year. (Image ©PCGS, Numista)

Chinese Emperor or Era	Characters	Calendar Years
Kwang-su / Guangxu	光緒	1875 - 1908
Xuantong / Hsuan-tung	宣統	1908 - 1911
Minguo (Republic of China)	中華民國 or 民國	1912 -1948, 1949 - present in Taiwan
Hung-hsien / Hongxian	洪憲	1915 - 1916
Ta T'ung / Datong (Manchoukuo)	大同	1932 - 1934
K'ang Te (Manchoukuo)	康德	1934 - 1945
People's Republic of China	中华人民共和国	1949 - present in China

Chinese coins introduce another numeric convention, that there are "formal" symbols for the same numbers we looked at previously. Some coins will use the formal number for the denomination and the conventional numbering for the date, and denominations on bank notes are invariably in formal numbers. The People's Republic of China use Arabic numbers for the dates on their coins, while denominations are given in both formal Chinese and Arabic numbers. The Krause Catalog provides a table similar to the one below, adapted from Chinese Bank Notes (Smith and Matravers); I have used the left-to-right convention.

Number	Conventional	Formal
½	半
1	一	壹 or 弍
2	二	貳 or 弍
3	三	叁 or 弍
4	四	肆
5	五	伍
6	六	陆
7	七	柒
8	八	捌
9	九	玖

10	十	拾 or 什
20	二十 or 廿	貳拾
25	二十五 or 廿五	貳拾伍
30	三十 or 卅	叁拾
100	百	佰 or 壹佰
1 000	千	仟 or 壹仟
10 000	万	萬

The currency symbols on Chinese coins are cash 文, li 釐, fen 分, chiao or jiao 角, hou 毫, and three symbols for yuan in different contexts: 元, 圓, or 圓.

In Taiwan, the one dollar coin illustrates the use of the formal number 壹 for the denomination. Interestingly, in 2011 instead of adopting the 100 symbol 百 for the era date, they instead chose to use a zero-style symbol with Arabic-style digit placing. We might have expected years 100, 101, and 102 to be rendered as 百, 百一, and 百二 but instead they are a less traditional 一 0 0, 一 0 一 and 一 0 二.

Image: 1 Dollar, Taiwan. Reverse (right-to-left) 壹 1 圓 dollar. Obverse legends (right-to-left) 中華民國 Republic of China. 九十五 9x10 and 5 年 year; 一 0 0 100 年 year; 一 0 一 101 年 year; 一 0 二 102 年 year. (Image by the author)

Cyclical dates are an interesting short-hand for the year that was used in China and in Vietnam. Ten symbols representing the "heavenly stems" are paired with the twelve symbols of the Chinese Zodiac, or "earthly branches". Each year, the next stem in the series is paired up with the next branch. It takes sixty years to cycle back to the same pair of symbols, so the era or the coin's context will help determine which 60-year period to use.

While these date symbols are very common on say, porcelain antiques, Chinese coins evidently used the system only from 1898-1911. In Vietnam, the system was used to date silver and gold bars from 1832-1882. The symbols and corresponding dates are given in the table, and can be used for any year by repeatedly adding or subtracting 60 as appropriate.

Cyclical Dates (two years given for each symbol)

Although a small handful of coin varieties in Vietnam used an era date system, the vast majority were undated. Vietnam later adopted a Latin alphabet writing system and Gregorian calendar dates in the mid-20th century. Their older currency symbols include the phan 分, van 文 and quan 貫, as well as the bullion weights tien 錢 and lang 兩.

Armed with all of this knowledge, we can even read the denominations on the bilingual coins of Hong Kong. Interestingly, 50 cents can be written as "half-yuan" or "five hou". The characters of interest are Hong Kong itself 香港, the mil 文 (thousandth of a dollar), cent 仙, hou or chiao 毫 (10 cents), and the dollar 圓.

Korea, prior to its annexation by Japan in 1910, also used the familiar "era" dating system for its milled coins. Korea even employed the same traditional Chinese characters we learned above for their coins, not the distinctly Korean "Hangul" characters in use today.

Korean Emperor or Era	Characters	Calendar Years
Kaeguk / Gaeguk	開國	1392-1910
Kuang Mu / Guangmu	光武	1897-1907
Yunghui / Sunjong	隆熙	1907-1910

Korean coins of that time will often bear one of the following legends: 大朝鮮 "Great Korea", 朝鮮 "Korea" and 大韓 "Great Han". Because of the Kaeguk era reckoning and the duration of its dynasty, some coins show era years of over 500! Notable currency characters are similar to those used in China, albeit with different names: mun 文, fun / bun / pun 分, jeon / chon 錢, hwan / won 圓 and yang 兩.

There is of course a ton of additional information about these coins if you decide to go down the rabbit hole. Dozens of mint mark symbols exist, and the study of cast cash coin inscriptions, which I've left out because they are undated, could fill many books. Cash coins really blur the line between ancient and modern coin collecting, as they were in use as far back as the 4th century BCE and as recently as the 20th century.

Best of all, with the study of a few dozen symbols, you can amaze yourself and your friends by identifying and understanding a good portion of the writing on the coins from all of these countries.
